

TERMS OF REFERENCE (TOR)

Daayitwa Nepal Public Policy Fellow

I. Background

Nepal strives to graduate from LDC to middle-income country status by 2030. The excessive focus of Nepal's development paradigm on socio-political empowerment however, has not yielded the desired economic transformation. In fact, the dismal domestic youth employment has heightened foreign migration, lowered domestic productivity, and increased economic dependence on foreign nations. Daayitwa, with a focus on economic empowerment, envisions an enterprising Nepal where every youth has opportunities for a prosperous future and aims to:

- Promote inclusive and enterprise-led economic growth
- Strengthen governance of inclusive enterprise ecosystem
- Bolster community engagement for enhanced livelihoods

Towards these goals, Daayitwa executes three programs. The Rural Enterprise Acceleration Program (REAP) supports rural high-growth entrepreneurs to accelerate their businesses, create jobs and incubate other local entrepreneurs. In linking the grassroots and government level engagements, the Yuwa Aaja! Program supports civic innovators to run social campaigns and nurture enterprising mindset in Nepal. The Daayitwa Abhiyaan also comprises three other entities, Nepal Leadership Academy, Governance Lab, and Daayitwa U.S.

Daayitwa Nepal Public Policy Fellowship (DNPPF)

As Nepal is navigating the federalism process, the strengthening of governance systems in the federal model has become critical so that the immense potential for economic growth can be harnessed through power devolution. The growing talent, passion, and energy of youths in Nepal and across the world is a tremendous resource-base for the development of the country yet their engagement in bolstering the public systems and domestic economy has been limited. Moreover, the persisting political instability in the country has eroded the youth's faith in their own government, and youth's weak participation in development processes and impatience for rapid results has also tarnished the government's perception of them. The trust deficiency on both sides has created a barrier, hindering youth-government collaboration for sustainable economic growth.

In addressing the issue of youth employment and youth-government trust deficit, for the past seven years, the Daayitwa Nepal Public Service Fellowship Program (DNPSF) has been enabling youths to collaborate with the government for conducting economic policy research and promoting evidence-based policy decisions. The fellowship program competitively selects and places young professionals and students in public agencies and with parliamentarians for 3-6 months, builds their technical and adaptive capacities, and enables them to provide research support to their public partners. During the past seven fellowship cycles (2013-2019), the fellowship program, has supported 99 policy entrepreneurs from 28 countries to collaborate with 28 ministries and public agencies, and 24 parliamentarians to conduct research projects.

This year, under DNPSF, we are launching Daayitwa Nepal Public Policy Fellowship (DNPPF), with a key motive of "My Government, My Responsibility." The Government of Nepal and Daayitwa have been partnering to identify and apply innovative methods of conducting research to find evidence for promoting entrepreneurship and strengthening governance.

The DNPPF 2020 program will consolidate the action learning from the past seven years and have the following objectives:

- Promote domestic youth employment
- Strengthen youth-government policy collaboration
- Nurture evidence mindset in federal and subnational governments

This collaborative initiative has become an action-platform for Nepali students and young professionals, in Nepal and internationally. The fellows also partake in a Leadership Course provided by the Nepal Leadership Academy designed at Harvard Kennedy School of Government by Professors Marshall Ganz and Ronald Heifetz in collaboration with Dr. Pukar Malla, Executive Chairperson at Daayitwa. The course is built on Nepal's socio-cultural and political context that teaches the youth public speaking, collaborative work and adaptive leadership. The fellows also receive Research Mentorship with the Governance Lab, which aims to nurture technical and leadership capacity of public officials for enhanced implementation and impact.

This year, we have identified and divided key policy issues into five thematic research topics:

- Access to Investment
- Women's Economic Empowerment
- Enterprise Value Chain
- Youth Employment
- Governance Reform

II. Project Overview

Project	Promoting Remittance For Productive Investment
Government Agency Placement	National Planning Commission
Location	Singha Durbar, Kathmandu, Nepal

OVERVIEW

The National Planning Commission (NPC) is the primary advisory body of the Government of Nepal that formulates a national vision, plans and policies for development. The NPC assesses resource needs, identifies sources of funding, and allocates budget for socio-economic development. It serves as a central agency for monitoring and evaluating development plans, policies and programs. The NPC also serves as an intellectual hub for the exchange of new development ideas and proposals from scholars, private sector, civil society, and development partners.

According to the World Bank Report, Nepali workers sent home $8.1 billion in 2018, which makes it the 19th biggest beneficiary of remittance in the world. Remittances improve the standard of living for individual families by reducing poverty rates and increasing access to education. Remittances can also be channelled towards productive investments by encouraging entrepreneurship. However, while remittances have economically improved lives of migrant workers and their families, most of it is expended in consumption adding very little towards savings and investments. It is therefore critical to understand the utilization of remittance by the families or migrant workers to determine how remittances can be channelled into productive projects. The selected fellow will conduct a survey to better understand how the individual families are spending or using the remittance. The research will also highlight the motivations and intentions of migrant workers to send the money to their families and friends. The research will provide recommendations on effective policies that can be undertaken by the Government of Nepal. The fellow will be placed under the supervision of Dr. Ram Phuyal, Member at the NPC.
